THE SOCIAL AND POLITICAL MODEL OF THE UKRAINIAN AS NATION COUNTRY

Abstract

The modern Ukrainian country is based on the centuries-old popular idea of creating an independent, conciliar, free, democratic, fair, legal and social state. Along with the development of Ukraine as a country, social-educational and political nationalist organizations also developed. In May 2009 political party "Svoboda", under the guidance of a professor of the Taras Shevchenko National University of Kyiv, Doctor of Law Alexander Shevchenko presented their vision of the National Constitution of Ukraine. The appearance of this draft marks the transition from revolutionary liberation nationalism to the forming state. The purpose of the article is a comparative analysis of the political system of modern Ukraine and in the political thought of nationalist parties, using the example of the political party "Svoboda".
