

Democratic Principles of Public Authorities Establishment

Abstract

The article proposes a definition of the term “democratic principles of staffing public authorities”. Its basic characteristics should be considered a clear policy of the state regarding the selection of personnel of public authorities, the legislatively fixed algorithm of their functioning, equal influence of citizens on the functioning of these bodies and the presence of constant control over their creation and activity. The introduction of this term in the legislation will prevent the subjectivism in public administration.

Keywords: public administration, civil service, democracy, principles, public authority.