

THE IMPORTANCE OF SIMPLIFIED COMMUNICATION IN THE PROCESS OF LEGITIMIZING THE CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS

Abstract

The article aims to describe the importance of using plain language in constitutional communication and the resulting benefits. It was inspired by observations of the political situation in Poland and in the world, which showed the existence of growing manipulative and populist tendencies distorting the law, value, and constitutional principles. The article shows the role of the constitution in the state and society, the essence and dynamics of legitimizing processes, as well as the benefits of simplified communication about the constitution for the acceptance of the legal order, constitutional principles, and values. The main conclusion from the article is that the practical knowledge of constitutional law increases the awareness of society, the effectiveness of its functioning in the political system, and reduces the likelihood of ideological manipulations and abuses of the authorities.
